From As By a New Pentecost by Patti Gallagher Mansfield

This was part of David Mangan's reflection on the importance of the Duquesne Weekend.

God renewed our awareness of spiritual gifts because we needed to know about them to grow in our Christian lives.
They're not decorations or extra added attractions. If the apostles and Mary in the upper room needed spiritual gifts and discernment, I need them too.

Its important to look at the Charismatic Renewal as a work of God. That doesn't mean that everything that has occurred has been God's will. Thank God that he doesn't 'check out' when we stray from him. It does mean that God is patiently leading us on very gently, very lovingly and for this reason we should not disdain what He has done in the past or how He has done it.

I look back on the past and treasure it but we cannot live in the past. We need to be in touch with God now, in the present moment. I value the things He did in the early days of the Charismatic Renewal, even though there were many painful lessons. I have no desire to go back, none whatsoever. The good old days are right now. The good old days are when God is acting, not only when He acted before, but where He is acting now. God is a dynamic God, always on the move and I want to be with Him. I pledge myself to be with Him!

If that word was relevant in 1992 when the book was written it is even more relevant now! (bold is my reflection) - Joe Loizzo
